Kelsey Heino joined Woods Aitken in 2019 and is a member of the firm's labor and employment practice group. She represents management on a full range of labor and employment matters, including defending investigations by state and federal agencies, and advising regarding discipline, discharge, performance evaluations, and employment-related contracts. Kelsey also helps clients be proactive by representing management in collective bargaining negotiations, developing HR policies and handbooks, and conducting trainings on a broad range of topics. When problems arise, Kelsey represents clients in employment litigation in federal and state courts and before federal and state administrative agencies. Kelsey's complex litigation experience includes the representation of clients in a variety of industries, including construction and trades, corporate, banking and financial, HR/staffing, and health care.

Prior to Woods Aitken, Kelsey worked at a Fortune 500 company as a claims professional, where she coordinated case resolution with underrepresented clients, attorneys, employers, and medical providers. She graduated cum laude from the University of Nebraska College of Law in 2017, where she was a Faculty Research Fellow, active on the client counseling team and a recipient of a CALI Excellence for the Future Award. Kelsey worked at a law firm in Sioux City, Iowa, as a complex litigation attorney before joining Woods Aitken.
