For 35 years Dan Gross has represented contractors, suppliers, sureties, owners, and design professionals in the public and private construction arenas. Dan is focused on bringing value to clients through his handling of complex claims and disputes in mediation, arbitration, and litigation before state and federal courts and administrative bodies, and federal boards of contract appeals.

He has tried more than 75 cases in litigation and arbitration.

His experience covers a wide range of construction including pipelines, bridges and roadways, dams, water and wastewater treatment plants, sports facilities, airports and other transit facilities, industrial plants, conventional and alternative energy generation, hospitals, prisons, hotels, commercial and residential buildings, hazardous waste remediation, and power transmission.

Dan provides his construction clients with a broad range of legal services, including:

Preparation and review of bid documents and RFPs
Public contract bid protests
Preparation, prosecution and defense of construction claims such as delays, changes, defective specifications, differing site conditions, suspension and termination, prompt payment, and prevailing wage
Construction defect litigation
Insurance claims and coverage disputes
Commercial disputes

He also has an active alternative dispute resolution practice and has served as a panel arbitrator in over 50 arbitration proceedings, including more than 20 handled through award.
